

Keeping up to date with the latest security threats and ensuring that networks are protected is a challenge for all businesses.

A virus outbreak or network breach can cost a business considerably and cause issues such as data leakage, reputation loss, down-time and loss of profits. In a worst case scenario, it could even lead to legal liability and lawsuits.

For damage limitation, it's vital that such situations are handled quickly and appropriately. Most businesses want to have a secure IT environment but very often, maintaining the skills needed to manage a firewall is not always possible and other priorities take greater importance.
